Providing shelter from family violence –
a support worker talks about local programs that aim to prevent
family violence

We are all aware that November's White Ribbon Day is fast approaching.
Tonight we would like to lead a discussion about local programs that aim to support families experiencing domestic violence.

Our guest speaker is a support worker from Stirling Women's Centre (SWC). SWC provide emergency accommodation for up to five families experiencing family or domestic violence. They run the Safe at Home programme which works with families and enables women and children to remain in the home when it is safe to do so.

Further, BPW Joondalup has a November tradition of collecting donations of new toiletries etc for the local refuges. If you wish to bring an item to the November dinner meeting, it will be donated on your behalf to the women's refuge.

ABOUT BPW

BPW is a global NGO that develops women's potential at all levels through advocacy, mentoring, networking, skill building, education, and economic empowerment programs & projects around the world. We take action to achieve women's equality in social, economic, community and political terms.

BPW holds Special Category Status at the United Nations and represents the voice of women in more than 100 countries. Established in Australia in 1925, BPW Australia has been influencing and driving legislative changes such as Paid Parental Leave Equal Pay and divorce law to help shape the way Australian women live their lives today.
